BOOMERS SURPRISED

Harrison's Followers Steal a March

BY OPENING HEADQUARTERS

Interesting Prelude From the Scene of the Coming Presidential Struggle.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 1.—The advance guard of convention workers came in this afternoon and Harrison parlors were opened at the West hotel. The arrivals this afternoon of Harrison men was of the most enthusiastic kind and all came from Indiana.

The early opening of Harrison headquarters was a surprise to the Blaine men, who expected to be the first when they came in with the national committee tomorrow. In short, the President's friends have stolen a march on the Blaine boomers and their sudden arrival means a fight from start to finish.

It is said their unannounced arrival and quick opening of headquarters was made on telegraphic instructions from Washington, and the men here and to come tomorrow are the same ones who did so much for Harrison's nomination in 1888. General Michnet and John C. New will be in command.

R. R. Shiel, who is with the arrivals, said it was certainly in bad taste for Quay, Platt and Foraker, whose judgments are not backed by the records, to attempt to dictate who the presidential nominee shall be. The Blaine sentiment, he said, was not so strong as believed. It was more probably an anti-Harrison sentiment, and the leaders are willing to unite upon any one to defeat Harrison. Shiel further said there was not the shadow of a doubt but that Harrison would be renominated. "We have the delegates with which to do it, and it is foolishness to think of any serious opposition to the President."

HARRISON THE MAN

Unless Complications Arise, Says Mr. Depew.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Chauncey M. Depew arrived tonight. Speaking of the possibility of Blaine being a candidate he said that Harrison was the most certain to be the nominee of the convention, but in case Blaine was nominated and refused then Harrison could not be a candidate for an office declined by the chief officer of his cabinet. Demoralization in such an event would spread all over the country and the party would be defeated before the election began. The inevitable and irresistible logic of the situation is the nomination of Harrison. The only chance to beat Harrison is that they should vote for half a dozen favorite sons and prevent a choice until his opponents could concentrate upon somebody. The supreme effort to induce Blaine to become a candidate has practically retired everybody but him, so that unless Blaine allows his name to be presented Harrison will be nominated by the potential force of his record and friends and by default of defendant. He said nothing could be more suggestive of the difficulties of the situation to the opponents of Harrison than the spectacle of practical politicians like Platt, Quay, Clarkson and others flirting with the ghost of Cæsar or the coffin of Mahomet.

BLAINE DEMANDED

By the West, According to Chairman Clarkson.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Chairman Clarkson of the National Republican committee, before leaving here for Minneapolis tonight said: "The result of the conventions in the different states was to give the President 290 instructed votes. This left over 600 uninstructed delegates. In my opinion the reason for this action is that the north still cherished a party hope that Blaine might be secured as the candidate. The question now to be settled by Republicans is, whether Harrison is better entitled to two terms than Blaine is to one. I have equally a kind feeling for both, but we shall need our strongest man to win. I hope to see whoever shall be chosen selected by acclamation. The talk that there is any disrespect for President Harrison is unfounded. The sentiment in New York is overwhelmingly for Blaine, as it was also in Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois and the northwest, while in the country west of the Mississippi there was an almost unanimous demand for Blaine, if he can be had. As to the temporary chairmanship of the convention, I think there are more members who would support Reed than any other man."

A HEARTY SEND-OFF.

Delegates to Minneapolis Given a Royal Starter.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—The California delegation to the Republican national convention left here at 9.30 this morning by a special train of seven cars in charge of W. D. Sanborn, general agent of the Burlington route.

The party consisted of 75 people, and besides the delegates included many prominent citizens of the city and state.

They will travel over the Southern Pacific, Rio Grande, Burlington and Chicago, St. Paul & Minneapolis lines, reaching Minneapolis at 9 a. m. Sunday, June 5th.

Sacramento—The train bearing delegates to the Republican convention arrived at the Sacramento depot at 1.35 this afternoon. There was an immense crowd of people at the depot to greet the delegates and a cheer went up as the train rolled into the station.

Delegate A. J. Rhodes of this city was escorted to the train by a large procession of Republicans headed by the First artillery band.

During the stay here speeches were made by George A. Knight and M. H. DeYoung of San Francisco, and Grove L. Johnson of this city. There was loud calls for Carpenter of Los Angeles, but just as he made his appearance the bell rang and the train pulled out of the station, followed by cheers of the assembled multitudes.

The train stops at Reno at 11 p.m. tonight where the Nevada delegates will be taken up.

Politics Preferred.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—From present indications it appears likely there will be a practical suspension of public business in congress next week owing to numerous absentees. Many Republican senators have already departed or arranged to depart for Minneapolis.

A GOOD HAUL.

$50,000 Taken From a Santa Fe Train Last Night.

WICHITA, Kas., June 1.—A special to the Eagle says the south bound Santa Fe train which leaves Wichita at 5.45 p.m. was held up at 9.45 tonight by masked robbers at the stock yards near the station of Red Rock, in the Cherokee Strip. The train was flagged and the engineer and fireman taken prisoners.

The robbers entered the express car, broke open the safe and secured the contents. The amount obtained is said to be $50,000. The passengers were not molested. Deputy United States Marshal Madsen at Guthrie was notified and will organize a posse and start in pursuit of the gang. The money obtained was intended for Indian payments.

Democratic Delegates.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—The Democratic delegates of California to the national convention at Chicago leave San Francisco on June 15th in a special train over the Union Pacific and Chicago & Northwestern. A rate of $70 for the round trip has been made and is open to the public.

Will Be a Holiday.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—A joint resolution was passed today, authorizing and directing the President to proclaim a general holiday commemorating the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America on October 12, 1892.

Derby Winners.

LONDON, June 1.—Sir Hugo won the derby, Laitreh second, Bugentaire third.

Baseball.

San Francisco—Los Angeles 9, Oakland 7.

HAD TO LIVE

AND COMMITTED A CRIME TO DO SO.

John Craig, Assistant Secretary of the World's Fair Commission, Guilty of Forgery.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—John Craig, assistant secretary of the World's Fair commission, was arrested today on a charge of forgery. He is accused of forging the names of President Irving M. Scott and Secretary Thompson, of the commission, to checks aggregating $2400.

Craig forged ten checks in all, the first one amounting to $1400.

Craig was employed as assistant secretary in April, 1891, but did not draw any salary until January, 1892, when he was paid $100 per month. In the meantime he had a family to support, and it is supposed that he used the money for their benefit.

The forgery was discovered a week ago by the World's Fair commission and the Crocker-Woolworth bank, on which the checks were drawn. He was charged then with the crime and on cessed, but was not arrested until today. He refuses to talk on the subject.

LITTLE AH SHIN.

Miss Culbertson Wishes to Obtain Possession of Her.

The habeas corpus matter of Ah Shin came up before Judge Holmes late yesterday afternoon.

Ah Shin, it is alleged, is being wrongfully detained by Ah Kit. She is a little Chinese girl about 8 years old. She had for some time past been with her foster father and his wife. The latter died recently and shortly thereafter Ah Kit is alleged to have stolen the child from the foster father.

The latter is willing to hand Ah Shin over to Miss Culbertson of the Chinese mission at San Francisco, but Ah Kit would not give up the child. Habeas corpus proceedings were therefore begun. A. M. Drew and H. Z. Austin represented the petitioner. The petition was read and the attorneys were about to argue the case when the court refused to hear any argument, and denied the petition on the rather remarkable grounds that Miss Culbertson had no claim on the child and never had possession of her.

The code clearly states that a petition for a habeas corpus may be applied for either by the person for whose relief it is intended, or by some other person in his behalf. As Miss Culbertson is convinced that the child's present owner is not a right or proper guardian she will persist in her endeavor to obtain possession of Ah Shin.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE.

Elinor G. Calkins Wants One from Her Husband.

In the superior court early yesterday afternoon Elinor Gertrude Calkins brought suit against her husband, Henry Malcolm Calkins.

The plaintiff alleges that she and Calkins were married in October, 1884, and gives as grounds for divorce his cruel and inhuman treatment of her and failure to provide for her.

Mrs. Calkins asserts that Calkins called her vile and degrading names at different times and accused her of being an abandoned woman. In April, 1891, while she was in a delicate condition, Calkins struck her on the breast with his fist, rendering her unconscious.

In June of the same year, while she was confined to her bed from childbirth, Calkins abandoned her and left her without means or anything to eat, so that she had to seek public aid. For a long time prior to this he had willfully failed to provide for her and their children, though he was capable of earning at least $20 a week at his trade, that of a printer.

Mrs. J. S. Hermann of this city left for Healdsburg yesterday, where she will spend the summer.

THERE WAS A SQUABBLE

In Orgauizing the People's Convention.

THE TRADESMEN WANTED IT

Harmony Was Effected and the Objects of the Convention Are Accomplished.

STOCKTON, June 1.—In the preliminary organization of the state convention of the People's party today there was a sharp contest between the farmers and trades union elements.

J. J. Morrison of San Francisco was the choice of the industrial delegates for chairman, while the farmers wanted Captain John G. Dawes of Fresno. Morrison finally withdrew and Dawes was elected.

Feeling ran high, however, and when the committee on permanent organization reported a change was made which created harmony.

William Boyne of Sacramento, a representative trades union man, was made chairman; Rev. W. C. Bowman of Los Angeles, vice chairman; Morrison of San Francisco, secretary.

The committee on platform was in session five hours. The Prohibitionists made a great effort to get recognition, but the question was not treated.

Resolutions were adopted by the committee denouncing the railroad commissioners, declaring in favor of the free coinage of silver, and indorsing the Nicaragua canal.

The electors chosen were: First district—A. L. Warner of Healdsburg; second—J. N. Barton of Placer; third—L. F. Moulton of Colusa; fourth—Thomas V. Colter of San Francisco; fifth—William McCormick of San Francisco; sixth—Rev. W. C. Bowman of Los Angeles; seventh—D. T. Fowler of Fresno.

Thirty-six delegates to the national convention, to meet in Omaha on July 4th, are to be chosen.

Delegates to the national convention from the Sixth district are J. S. Loveland of Santa Barbara, E. M. Hamilton of Los Angeles, J. O. Drew of Santa Cruz, A. R. Hathaway of San Luis Obispo.

Hiram Hamilton of Orange was nominated in the Sixth district for congress.

LEE LUNG DISCHARGED.

Promises to Bandage His Daughter's Feet No More.

Lee Lung and his wife were up before Justice Crichton yesterday morning to be tried on the charge of having treated cruelly their little girl by binding her feet in order to keep them small. A. M. Drew represented the people and Mark Walser the defendants.

Mr. Drew was not inclined to prosecute since the parents had taken the bandages off of the girl and promised to keep them off. Attorney Walser denied such a promise had been made and stated no such promise would be made. Quite a dispute followed.

It was cut short by Chuey Ling, the interpreter, who made quite an eloquent address to Justice Crichton. He stated they wanted to have no trouble and that the parents would keep the bandages off. They bound the child's feet because they did not know it was against the law.

In China it was the custom for the children in swelldom to have their feet bandaged. "Woman with big feet in China no good," said Chuey Sing; "allee samee Chilcago girl. No can mally lich Chinaman if got big fleet. Samee like in America, woman got small waist lots high tone; no work mally lich man. But woman with big waist no count; she wash dishes and all like that."

Miss Culbertson, who was present, thought the argument def cive in that the women here laced themselves of their own free will, while the Chinese children's wills were not consulted in the matter of bandaging their feet. Lee Lung and his wife were permitted to go in consideration of their promise to bandage the girl's feet no more.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Great Realistic Drama at the Barton Tonight.

"The Midnight Alarm" is called a realistic drama. There has been no misnomer, it is one of the most truly real plays that has been placed upon the stage for some time. But realism pleases the masses. It excites their love of dramatic suspense, kindles more interest, and besides, it shows them how great is the stage machinist's invention.

"The Midnight Alarm" is one of the good ones. The plot, the central story, has not been allowed to suffer for the sake of introducing the realness, or vice versa.

The railroad bridge scene and that of the fire house with its stamping horses and engine stack pouring out clouds of red-hot cinders and smoke work into the play seemingly of their own accord.

There is no straining after effect, no cries of "On to the engine house," or "Now to save the South Shore express," but the players work silently as only men and women in desperate straits will work.

Monday evening next Charles Frohman's Madison Square company will play "Jane" at the Barton. Seats now on sale.

On Wednesday evening, June 8th, the great sensational play "Blue Jeans" will be the attraction at the Barton.

W. H. Curston has returned from a two weeks' visit to Honey Lake valley in Lassen county.

Charles G. Hamilton of Philadelphia is among the eastern visitors now in Fresno.

DEMAND THE DIFFERENCE.

In buying baking powders, as well as anything else, insist upon having the worth of your money. If another brand is urged upon you in place of the Royal, bear in mind that it has from 27 to 50 per cent. less leavening strength than the Royal, as shown by the official chemical tests, which is equal to from 13½ to 25 cents per pound less value than the Royal. If you buy a low class powder, see that you are charged a correspondingly lower price.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS.

Advertisements of "Wanted," "For Sale," "For Rent," "Lost," etc., will be inserted at the rate of 5 cents a line for each insertion. No single advertisement taken for less than 25 cents. In estimating the length of each advertisement, count six words to the line for the first three lines of ordinary reading matter, and eight words to the line for all subsequent lines. Orders by mail promptly filled, but the cash should accompany each order.

VALUABLE PREMIUMS.

THE REPUBLICAN believes that it would be a good thing if the masses of the people should take a greater interest in politics. If they were to watch closely the vote in different sections of the country and inform themselves as to the causes of expression of the popular will, they would themselves be better prepared to vote intelligently. To stimulate this interest, and at the same time to show in a special manner an appreciation of the very liberal patronage accorded this paper by the people of Fresno and neighboring counties, it has been decided to offer a list of very valuable premiums to subscribers of THE REPUBLICAN and all those who may in the near future assume that pleasant relation with the leading newspaper of the San Joaquin valley, the premiums to be presented to those who show the greatest skill in estimating results in the approaching election. All old and new subscribers complying with the requirements stated in the advertising columns will be entitled to contest for these premiums. None of the premiums offered are of the cheap sort commonly used for such purposes, but are all articles of the best quality, purchased from home dealers and guaranteed by them in every respect. The town lots in this city and Sanger are cheap at the valuation placed upon them, and, in fact, no article on the list could be bought for a less figure than the valuation given. This is a much larger outlay than any interior paper has ever made in the way of premiums to subscribers, but THE REPUBLICAN is gratified with the patronage it is receiving and desires to be liberal with its patrons. It believes that this contest will be mutually beneficial. All who make the proper investigation for an intelligent estimate on the various propositions will be benefited, and greatly, too, by the information thus obtained. Those who succeed in securing a premium will be doubly benefited.

THE REPUBLICAN will be benefited by an increase of circulation and of public approval of its enterprise and liberality. Altogether the proposition presents many advantages and no objectionable features.

BENEFITS OF RECIPROCITY.

The intense hostility of the Democratic party to reciprocity can be accounted for on no other ground than the fact that it is a measure of the Republican party, and is bound to prove a bulwark of strength to the cause of protection. The enterchange of American commodities free of duty for such foreign products as do not come into competition with the industries and products of this country, leaves the way clear to the maintenance of a protective duty on such foreign products as do come into competition with American industry; in fact, it compels a protective tariff if carried out under the present law.

In the current number of the June Forum Senator Hoar has an interesting review of the workings of the new law. The following in an extract from the very interesting article:

Every Democratic vote in the senate was recorded against the reciprocity clauses of the tariff act of the last Congress. Nothing but disparagement and sneers have been heard from Democratic orators in relation to that policy from that day to this. If the utterances of the Democratic leaders can be trusted to represent fairly the opinion of their followers, this policy will encounter their undying hostility, whether in power or out. Does any intelligent man who looks to a healthy and rapid extension of foreign commerce think it quite safe to intrust this great interest to the Democracy? Under the reciprocity section of the last tariff act arrangements have been concluded with Guatemala, Nicaragua, Salvador, Costa Rica, Jamaica, Cuba, Porto Rico, Santo Domingo, Trinidad, Barbados, British Guiana, the Leeward islands, the Windward islands, and Brazil. These represent a population of 21,500,000 souls, and an annual commerce of $650,000,000. Partial arrangements of a like character have been made with France and Germany. More extended ones are still under way. Similar arrangements are in negotiation with other nations. The duties upon sugar, coffee and hides imported from Venezuela, Columbia and Hayti have been restored by proclamation of the President.

The value of these treaties must depend, as the value of everything depends under our government, upon private sagacity and enterprise. It is too soon to calculate the enormous advantage of these new relations. But even in their infancy we can see something of their results. Our exports to Brazil have increased more than $1,000,000 in value in the past eleven months, in spite of the disturbed political condition of that country, which has passed through three political revolutions and a serious financial crisis. Our exports to Brazil have gained 20 per cent in eight months in a constantly increasing ratio. The export of flour to Brazil for February increased from $185,551 to $406,469 as compared with last year. The proportion of the imports of Brazil furnished by Great Britain was 71 per cent of the whole in 1890. In 1891 it was 59.11 per cent. The United States increased in that year from 8.50 per cent to 14.49 per cent. Our reciprocity arrangement with Cuba has been in force but six months. In that time our exports have increased from $6,895,037 to $10,135,085. Our exports of flour alone to Cuba have increased from $454,693 to $939,154, although as has been stated, the price of flour has fallen 20 per cent.

WILLIAM Q. JUDGE, the theosophist, gives the following description of a Mahatma, a colony of which remarkable things are to be established on the summit of the Tehachapi range of this state:

The theosophical definition of Mahatma is very long, but if you want a newspaper definition, it is a human being so wise that he knows all things in the universe and can control the elements at will. It can be either in a man or woman, for in Mahatmadom the right of woman suffrage is conceded. A Mahatma is a perfect human being.

According to excellent Democratic authority Grover Cleveland is entitled to become a member of this colony, the earthly elements he is unable to control being confined to the state of New York.

SULLIVAN may have to fight a "nigger" yet if he wishes to maintain his reputation as the world's champion. If Peter Jackson keeps on knocking out the other sluggers, it will soon begin to look as though the Bostonian is entrenched behind the color line as a matter of discretion instead of race prejudice.

MISS NANCE'S VIRTUE

The Rude Way in Which Her Lover Tested It.

A BATCH OF LOVE LETTERS

Frank Was Jealous, Maggie Was Unhappy and He Was Taken Into Court.

Miss Maggie Nance told the jury in Judge Holmes' court yesterday how her lover, Frank Thomas, had made a felonious assault upon her when they were returning home from church at Reedley on the night of January 31st of this year.

Miss Nance is a very pretty young woman. She wore a neat and stylish black dress with a tightly fitting waist, a perfectly stunning summer hat and a light veil that added additional luster to a pair of handsome eyes. Her two sisters, her father and her brothers were in court all day and appeared to take a deep interest in her testimony.

Notwithstanding the heat of the day the court room was packed with spectators, and among them were several of the young male members of Fresno's 150.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

She related the old story of two hearts that beat as one, of cruel relatives who kept them apart and of a morbidly jealous and too exacting lover. Thomas had been courting his lady love for about two years and became engaged, but her relatives opposed the match and gave the young lover the cold shoulder.

Under these circumstances most of their love making had to be done by correspondence, an art in which both excelled. Some of these letters—about twenty in number—were read to the jury by W. R. Jacobs of counsel for Thomas, in order to show the state of feeling that existed between the parties before and after the alleged assault. Miss Nance's letters in the main were brief and to the point. Her love and the surveillance under which she was kept had made her life unhappy, and many of her letters were written in reply to her lover's harsh criticisms vindicating herself from his accusations of fickleness and bewailing the fate that kept them apart.

HER LETTERS.

Her writing is a model for brevity and discretion. In a letter dated at Reedley, August 14th, 1890, she says: "Dear Frank—I send you my photo wishing to receive yours in return. I hope to see you soon. With love and regards, I remain your very faithful Maggie."

Under date of November 8th, 1890, she writes: "Dear Frank—It is with pleasure that I write to you. There is one consolation yet, and that is that I have the privilege of writing to you. I hope for better days to come. I didn't get the nice little lecture that I supposed I would for being out Sunday night."

In another note she regrets that she is kept at home on the ranch and not allowed to go to church at Reedley. "You are the only one I think of for my future happiness, and there must be a brighter day in store for us. Be certain to have some pictures taken when you go to Fresno. I would like to be there with you, but of course some of my guards would be there to bring me home."

CLOSELY WATCHED.

"I admit that it is not your fault that we do not see each other oftener," she writes on another occasion. "It is the fault of the folks here and I have no chance to do anything. When I go off from the ranch they go with me and stay by my side till we get home again. It is plainly to be seen by their actions that they expect to keep me here to wait on them as they have done for years, and they don't care how miserable I am. But all their sayings and actions will never change me; I am always the same. I don't wish to see the Selma fellow. He is nothing to me, and I don't think he is in Selma now."

GOOD ADVICE.

Under date of April 27, 1891, she advises Thomas not to indulge in alcoholic drinks. "Just think how many lives are ruined by strong intoxicating drink," she wrote. "I hope that nothing of the kind will happen to you."

In several other letters she asks him to meet her at Selma, where she intended going on a visit to some friends. In answer to Thomas' accusation of fickleness she says that she spoke to Rob Chisholm at the picnic for a little while, and with several other young fellows, but for not more than ten minutes. She had gone to church on a Sunday evening with a young man whose folks were visiting at her house. He asked her in the presence of both families to go with him on that occasion, and she could not find any reasonable excuse for declining his invitation.

In speaking of some mutual acquaintances she adds: "I suppose you have heard scandal enough to shock a whole city since you have been with that set. Don't let them make a bad boy of you. I am not afraid to trust you with them, but they are oh! so awful!"

In her communications Miss Nance addresses her lover variously as "Dear Frank," "Dear Thomas" and "Mr. J. F. Thomas."

After January 31st, the date of the alleged outrage, she received a letter from the defendant dated "Reedley, February 4th, 1892," and addressing her as "My Dear Maggie." He protests that his love for her has undergone no change. He invites her to go with him to Clark's Valley on the following Sunday, and closes with: "I will go anywhere to win you back again."

To this she returned an answer under date of February 8th, in which she addresses him as "Dear Frank: Yours of the 4th received. I was home all day Sunday and you could have spoken to me if we had met. Absence never caused me to change; no indeed. It was not that. I don't know if there is a spark in my heart ever to be rekindled again. You have shattered the confidence I had in you—for one I have trusted above all others. Who has been the true one in this case you well know. I never gave you cause to doubt me. It may be that we may meet some time in the near future. * * * I do not ask you to sign your name and I will not sign mine. YOURS ——"

On the next day Thomas answered the foregoing note.

DETERMINED TO WIN HER.

"It seems too hard to part from you now, but who is to blame for you not being the same? Was I not always willing to come and see you? I care more for you now than I ever did before, and Maggie, remember I treated you well when I might have done otherwise. You are none the worse for what has been. I want to see you and I will see you again. I hope my love may not turn to hatred. If you meet me at that place where we parted last evening we can arrange matters satisfactorily. I don't ask the same privilege I did before. I know now how deep is the being of your lost love. Why do I still seek you?

"If you will meet me at any place, or at any time, I will treat you with the respect due to any lady. Meet me at the bridge, and I hope I may win you back again."

On February 13th he writes: "Dear M.—O, where and when will this ever end. Love is not taken up one day and cast away the next. After waiting from year to year I find it would seem hard for us to part. I think you can see me at Brother George's house some evening. You may win me back if you treat me right."

ELOQUENCE OF THE SCRIBES.

Under date of February 14th he says: "Dear M.—Yours of the 13th received. If I had all the eloquence of the scribes that wield the mighty pen I would never accomplish much on paper. We must meet. I have something very important to tell you, and if I have that opportunity I think it will bring this affair to an end forever. George is my mortal enemy, and I will not meet you there. You can go visiting and I can call and see you, and I will treat you right. You know that when first this affair began two years ago I treated you well, but I always intended to know what I do now before we were made one. So it should have been with any woman. Now I am satisfied, and you need not be afraid to trust me. I think you better wait 'till dark nights and meet where we parted—no difference of the time at night; the later the better."

HER FEELINGS HAD CHANGED.

After reading the letters Mr. Jacobs proceeded to cross examine Miss Nance.

"After this took place on January 31st you had forgiven anything that occurred on his part that night?" he asked.

"No, sir; I did not."

"Did you change your opinion of him in any way?"

"My feelings were changed toward him that night after treating me that way. My feelings turned to hatred."

"Have they always remained feelings of hatred?"

"Yes, sir."

"You didn't love him a bit after that?"

"No, sir."

"Do you call your enemies 'dear'?" asked the lawyer quickly.

"No, sir."

"Why did you call the defendant 'dear,' then?"

"I did it simply to keep him quiet until he left. He was going to leave, and I wanted to keep him quiet because I didn't know what scandal he might tell about that night. He wrote his letter after that night and I answered him, and he wrote again and I answered him."

SHE TOLD HER FATHER.

"When did you first speak to any one about prosecuting him?" was asked.

"On the 20th of February I spoke to my father about prosecuting him, and that was the first time I spoke to my father about it?"

"Did you see the defendant after that night?"

"No, sir; not until I saw him in court."

"Do you know what his letter means when he says: 'Meet me where we parted last evening'?"

"I suppose he means where we parted on the 31st of last January."

THE UNFORTUNATE NIGHT.

Miss Nance detailed how she had gone to church with her sisters on the night of January 31st, and how she had met Thomas there and had a conversation with him. When she was ready to go home she found that her sisters had already left in the wagon, and Thomas got a buggy for her and they drove toward her home together. After driving along a road other than the one she and her sisters had traveled from home but leading to her home and by as short a route, they came to a ditch, and Thomas said there was no bridge across it. Thomas then drove with her back to Reedley and they started on the other road.

After they had gone about two and a half miles from Reedley and a little more than a mile from her home Thomas made the assault complained of.

She said that up to that time they had been talking of indifferent subjects. "He talked love to me a great many times and I talked love to him, too," she added.

"When he caught hold of me he said he had always heard that I was a virtuous girl and he wanted to find out if I was. I tried to jump out of the buggy but he held me back, and after the first scuffle he sat down again."

"What caused you to consent to prosecute this defendant?" was asked by Mr. Jacobs.

"Because I knew he deserved it. As long as the matter was kept back and there was no trouble about it and it didn't get to the public I was willing to let it go as it was. But it had got out and Vernon Reed said something about it, and that is how my father heard I was out with Thomas that night. My father asked me about it and I told him the whole story. If no one had told him about those rumors I should never have made any trouble about it.

"My father asked me what I wanted to do about it and I told him I wanted him prosecuted. I felt, in justice to my good name, that if those rumors got out I would have to prosecute him."

A THOROUGHBRED JOKE.

"This Vernon," said Reel B. Terry, "is a half breed Cherokee."

"Yes," retorted Mr. Jacobs. "He may be a whole breed, but he speaks the English language and that's all I care about it. If he was a thoroughbred he never would have mentioned it."

This sally caused a smile to flutter about the court room.

Miss Nance added that she was afraid that if she didn't answer Thomas' letters he might get angry and might say something that would bring scandal upon her.

At this stage of the proceedings the court adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

To the Voters of Fresno County.

I take great pleasure in stating the fact that I have been a mercantile man all my life, up to the time I came to Fresno, with the exception of four years during the war, when I served as lieutenant in the Signal Corps U.S.A.

I am thoroughly acquainted with the various systems of accounts, and have held positions of trust and responsibility since my eighteenth year. I have retired from city business. Should I be successful in the coming campaign, I would of course endeavor to be a credit to the office. More honor than salary being connected with this public trust and the present incumbent being loaded down with honor, the majority of voters might make a change with perfect propriety.

Yours, etc., M. DENICKE.

SOME FRESNO CHERUBS

At the Kindergarten Entertainment Last Night.

THE LITTLE ONES DID WELL

Miss Lizzie Saunders Complimented by a Large and Fashionable Audience.

Miss Lizzie Saunders, the popular and successful principal of the I-street kindergarten, received a flattering compliment last night in the large attendance at the Barton opera house on the occasion of the entertainment given by her diminutive pupils.

If Raphael had been alive and had been there last night he would have repainted his cherubs and thus given something more of variety to his immortal masterpiece for he would have found on the stage of the Barton as his models real cherubs without wings.

They drew a full house and a well dressed audience, well enough dressed to have lent the usual magnetism and charm to the first night of a new opera. But it was better than any opera that was ever put upon the stage. It was innate pure and simple both to the eye and ear alike.

The little ones were charmingly dressed. No dressmaker ever fashioned a gown with as much pride and care as the mothers of somebody's darlings did for their loved ones who appeared before the public last evening. Nor came there ever from the hands of Worth or the best of his female compeers garments so rare, not indeed in texture and fashion, but blessed with the simple grace of mother love.

The tots performed and sang their parts wonderfully well. There was not a trace of stage fright in their manner.

Every one is aware that each pair of parents believe their own children to be

The prettiest,
The cutest,
The most precocious,
The cleverest,
The most graceful

And the best in this wide, wide world. But even the crustiest old bachelor and the most vinegary cat-loving old maid in the audience last night admitted that for once all the parents in the house had good cause for their belief.

Didn't Mr. Pyke make a splendid grandpa in the cantata "Grandpa's Birthday"? His make-up was so sailful that even his favorite friend, the goat, would not have recognized him.

The first number on the program, a march by the school, was a revelation. It was a wonder how these miniature men and women could remember all the twistings and turnings and serpentine coils of that intricate march. They walked through it without a balk or a break."

Next came an opening song by the school, and "The Flower Girl" by Maud Muller. The exercise with the dumbbells was equally as good a performance as the march. It was performed by Herbert Levy, captain, Leon Levy, J. D. Stevens, Leslie Clark, Tristam Brown, Julia Coldwell, Maud Muller, Mamie Blackley, Jennie Bartlett, Frank Hodge, Pressly Thomas, Ansel Smith, Riggs White, Arthur Jones, Allen Hoffman, Leland Barton.

The motion song followed. Pretty Grace Graham was the soloist and six girls went through the graceful motions.

Ruth Muller and Tistram Brown in a character song captured the audience, and Mina Weiner and Erna Burwell, as "Two Grandmas," brought down the house.

There was great applause also for "The Rattle Drill" by Cassie White, Bernice Toombs, Ruth Muller, Mina Wiener, Rachel Alexander, Nora Coldwell, Cecil Raney, Marie Winchell, Erna Burwell, Janet Brown.

"The Kindergarten Soldiers" was a laughable performance by Artie Tynan, J. D. Stephens, Georgie McDonald, Leon Levy, Ralph Jones, Frank Hodge, Bennie Hodge, Robbie Hoffman, Max Hoehn, Marion Ellis.

"The Parasol Promenade" displayed some very pretty effects. The promenaders were Stella Ragsdale, Goldie Snow, Gertie Smith, Leona Henly, Katie Johnson, Flossie Burwell, Maggie Clark, Adele Winchell, Julia Coldwell, Jennie Bartlett, Vernie Statham, Edith Smutz.

If the ladies of the Salvation Army could march so gracefully with their tamborines as did Ruth Muller, Grace Graham, Edith Smutz, Maud Muller and Mamie Blackler they would be applauded whenever they appeared.

The final number was "Grandpa's Birthday," a cantata, in which C. M. Pyke, Leslie Clark, Leona Henly, Genevieve Maxen, Grace Long, Marion Ellis, Alexander and Edith Smutz took parts. The coronation chorus and "Put Me in My Little Bed" closed one of the most enjoyable entertainments ever given in this city.

Sports Who Do Not Want to Part With Their Money.

The principal topic of conversation on the streets last night was the fight between Jackson and Slavin which took place in London, and which resulted in an easy victory for the former. Groups of sports and would-be sports stood on the streets and excitedly discussed the news.

There was a great deal of "kicking" among a number of the boys who had their week's salary in the result, and in one case they flatly refused to pay the winner.

Russ Mace is vainly endeavoring to collect $50 or $60 which he had bet with several different parties in sums of $5 at a time. He received a telegram from a friend yesterday afternoon that Jackson had won the fight, and with an eye to business proceeded to put the knowledge to good use by making it serve to increase his bank account. He found lots of his friends who had faith in the white man's ability to beat the coon, and who were ready to back their opinion with money.

It leaked out, after the bets were made, that Russ had been betting on a sure thing, and so the victims of a mistaken confidence refused to part with their gold.

Russ stoutly maintained that he should be paid, as the fact that he had knowledge of who the victor was did not invalidate any bets that he had made.

Every sporting book that could throw any light on the disputed question was hunted up, and there were more copies of Hoyle's games in town today than hymn books at a church choral singing society.

The question is still undecided.—Madera Mercury.

PROBABLY MURDERED.

Frank F. Goodall's Corpse Found in the San Joaquin River.

About three weeks ago a body was found floating in the San Joaquin river near Dover. An inquest held by Justice Gilliam in the absence of Coroner O'Brien developed the fact that the name of the deceased was Frank F. Goodall. Papers on his person showed him to have been either an Englishman or Canadian. He was well dressed and his memorandums showed that he had worked for many prominent firms on this coast.

Some time previous to the finding of the body Mr. Sutherland, who lives on the Asbury farm, says he saw a man answering the description of Goodall drive into the locality with a horse and buggy. No trace of the horse and buggy was afterward found and furymen on the coroner's inquest say the papers on Goodall showed evidence of having been rifled. Goodall had relatives in Canada. —Merced Sun.

FISKE'S TOMBSTONE

His Widow Attached for Its Cost.

SCULPTORS WANT THEIR COIN

Mrs. Marceau's Rents in the Fiske Block Levied Upon by the Creditors.

Shortly after the deplorable end of the late J. D. Fiske his widow determined to mark the site of his last earthly resting place with a fitting monument. She therefore entered into an agreement with the Western Granite and Marble company of San Jose, by which she was to pay $1800 for a monument to be furnished by them.

The San Jose company made the monument, shipped it to Fresno and had their agent put it in place. It is what the firm calls a sarcophagus monument, and its beautiful workmanship is admired by every one who visits Mountain View cemetery.

It is somewhat the shape of a couch and on the pillow are inscribed the simple but affecting words, "Husband and Father." The base is of granite and the sarcophagus of fine marble. In short, it is such a monument as would reflect credit on any widow, no matter how deeply stricken or how wealthy.

The monument was to have been paid for as soon as finished and put in place. In the meantime Mrs. Fiske, having completed her mourning, met the handsome and talented Colonel Marceau. They were much charmed by the fine qualities of heart and mind possessed by the other and soon found that life would be stale, flat and unprofitable if they had to spend it apart. They therefore married.

A bride is not supposed to be in such a condition as to be able to attend to matter of fact business matters, and it is not surprising that the handsome monument over Mr. Fiske's grave remains unpaid for.

The marble company in San Jose, however, seems to be totally devoid of any appreciation of the finer sentiments, in fact, went so far as to become indignant that it was not paid according to agreement. When it learned that Mrs. Marceau had gone to Europe without arranging for the payment of their bill, the president of the company bit great chunks out of an unhewn piece of granite in his rage, and the agent here was instructed to attach something belonging to Mrs. Marceau—her poodle, toothbrush, anything.

Accordingly an attachment suit was filed in the clerk's office about two weeks ago. Nothing was done, however, until yesterday morning, when the writ was served and the tenants of the Fiske block notified not to pay over their rents to Mrs. Marceau's agent here.

Mrs. Marceau, who is at present in Paris with the colonel, was cabled to by her agent of the affair, and it is of course certain she will immediately order the claim of the company paid. It is asserted that her failure to do so before her departure was merely due to the preparations attending it, which required all her attention.

PISTOL PRACTICE

AT POLLASKY NEXT SUNDAY MORNING

By the Brigade Staff and Field and Line Officers of the Sixth.

The following circular has been sent to the various brigade and regimental officers; it explains itself:

Headquarters Third Brigade, National Guard of California.

Fresno, May 31.

Sir: Major Marcus Pollasky has extended a very cordial invitation to the commanding officer of the Third brigade, staff, and the field, line and staff, Sixth infantry regiment said brigade, resident here, to attend a private picnic to Pollasky on Sunday next, for a day's outing and a little indulgence in practice with Colt's revolvers. The same having been accepted on behalf of himself and staff, all members desiring to attend will assemble at these headquarters at 8.30 a.m. of said day, in fatigue uniform, dismounted (no top boots).

Your attention is called to G. O. No. 7, A. G. O., a copy of which is inclosed herewith.

Very respectfully your obedient serv't,
BENJ R. WOODWORTH,
Assistant Adjutant General.

Originally the invitation included the wives of the officers, but it was thought they would resent being asked to attend in fatigue uniform, dismounted and without top boots, and their names were stricken from it.

Majors T. J. Hay and Herman O. Eggers have been appointed to attend to the commissariat, and there is no doubt that they will fulfill the duties of that responsible position very successfully.

The party will go to Pollasky in a special car. The affair promises to be a very enjoyable one.

A RAISIN PACKER'S PROFITS

One With a Conscience Tells About Them.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN.—"A Practical Grower" tries to raise his feeble voice on behalf of the packers in THE DAILY REPUBLICAN of June 1st. It cannot be possible that a practical grower in fact can be so eager to mislead his fellow growers. A strong suspicion crosses the writer's mind that like the wolf in sheep's clothing Mr. Practical Grower is hiding himself in the robes of innocence and would make believe that he is one of those to be fleeced.

The article referred to is a misrepresentation from the beginning, and terminates with a falsehood.

"A Packer With a Conscience" stated simply, and hereby reiterates the same that: "One honorable packing firm has come to the front and offers as a starter 3 cents for raisins, new crop. Others will follow; don't be alarmed." He made no offer himself so far.

Last year the market opened at about 3 cents (not at 5 cents as a P. G stated, and the whole community will bear witness to this assertion) in consequence of which, as well as the total disregard of some of the packers shown for our reputation as a raisin producing district by dumping all sorts of inferior articles on the eastern markets, the real raisin growers organized co-operative packing companies all over the county in self defense. Fresno, Malaga, Fowler, Oleander, Easton, Selma, Kingsburg, Traver, Hanford and Lemoore organized. This withdrew an immense quantity of raisins from the market and the packers had to raise their figures to $4\frac{1}{2}$ cents per pound or thereabouts before they could find willing sellers. These are facts; we give you nothing but facts. You who are not members of the co-operative companies may thank the said organizations for the price you received for your first crop, and the loss you sustained on your second crop was caused by a combination of circumstances. The first blow was given by the wholesale repudiation of contracts.

Now to prove that "A Practical Grower" is trying to deceive you we will give you some figures (figures don't lie) with regard to the actual cost of packing.

Cost of packing one box of clusters as follows:

	Cents
Cost of box	6¼
Making same up including nails	1
Label, extra fine	6
Assorting from sweat box 2 cents per form	8
Packing, 2 cents per form	8
Proportion of rent, say	¾
Total cost packing one box clusters	30

And the packers modestly ask 60 cents, making a profit thereby of $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents per pound net. No wonder they are so eager to get your signatures.

The cost of packing London Layers is as follows:

	Cents
Box	6¼
Making same up, including nails	1
Labels, from 3 to 4 cents, say	4
Packing from sweat box, 2 cents per form, each box containing 4 forms, making per box	8
Throw in for rent of building	¾
Total	20

And the packers ask you to pay them 40 cents, thereby making a net profit on your goods of 1 cent per pound of London layers, and we can go through the whole list in the same manner, always showing an immense profit in favor of the packer.

We have not mentioned the cost of telegraphing and office expenses because the packers charge you 5 per cent extra on all sales, and according to custom such charges come out of the commissions.

In the name of common sense and the welfare of Fresno, "Look before you leap."

A PACKER WITH A CONSCIENCE.

CLEVELAND'S

One rounded teaspoonful of Cleveland's Baking Powder does more and better work than a heaping teaspoonful of any other. A large saving on a year's bakings.

BAKING POWDER

A pure cream of tartar powder.

Used in the U. S. Army and by teachers of Cookery.

Cleveland's is the standard, it never varies, it does the most work, the best work and is perfectly wholesome.

There are now four brands of Stockton flour on this market. This affords ample opportunity for comparison with the home product, which comparison we most cordially invite. Bear in mind the difference in cost per sack is due only to freight charges to this point.

THE SCHOOL CENSUS.

A Fair Increase in the Number of Census Children.

Quite a number of the census marshals have sent in their reports to Superintendent Kirk. They show on the whole a fair increase in the number of census children in this county. The largest increase is in the colonies.

Selma, or Valley View district, has 369 children between the ages of 5 and 17 years and 183 below 5 years. David Williams was census marshal in that district.

Oleander has 126 children between the ages of 5 and 17 years and 64 under 5. The former number is an increase of 27 over last year.

ROBBED AND BEATEN.

A Negro the Culprit—Another Charge Against Woods.

Amos Slater swore to two complaints before Recorder Laning yesterday accusing an unknown negro of having beaten him near the freight station last Tuesday night and having robbed him of $24. Up to an early hour this morning the villain had not been captured.

A charge of petit larceny was preferred against Charles Woods on complaint of Henry Fredericks, who charges Woods with having stolen a $10 overcoat from his room in the Southern Pacific hotel. Woods is connected with Tom Carr and Henry Stanley in several petit larceny cases.

IN FOOTHILL GROVES.

Where Ira G. Hoitt Has Found Retirement.

THE INTERESTING ENTERPRISE HE IS NURSING.

The Well-Known Educator Gives an Interesting Account of Himself.

Since the expiration of his term of office as State Superintendent of Public Instruction, a little over a year ago, but little has been heard of Ira G. Hoitt who filled that office for four years.

An Evening Post reporter who went in quest of him yesterday found him at one of the most charming places of retirement in California.

Alighting from the train at the pretty suburban village of San Mateo he was soon speeding over the country road which presented a panorama of luxurious beauty. Two miles from the town a narrow lane opened in the road. The long graceful curves of this lowely and shaded lane were followed for nearly a mile westward toward the foothills, and at length the open gate of a magnificent private estate was entered. After rounding the top of a little hill, picturesque country seat nestling in a sheltered place at the foot of graceful hills burst on the view. A well-kept orchard, acres of flowers and a neat garden spot were successively passed, and then came a picturesque bridge over the neck of a little lake and under an arch of massive live oaks. The long porch which ended the journey was embowered in roses and palms; flowers and foliage of various kinds charmed the eye at every turn.

This was the country home of the late J. H. Redington who for years lavished wealth on the house and grounds. It was secured last year by Mr. Hoitt who opened there Hoitt's Oak Grove School for boys. The house is elegantly furnished, has a library, billiard-room and every facility for the enjoyment of home comfort. Not a sound of exterior human life reaches this romantic retreat—sheltered by hills and by live-oak groves. Here the well-known educator was found, enjoying his life and labor as master of a school in which his own educational ideas could be wholly carried out. In response to a servant's summons, he came from the school-building where recitations were going on and cordially greeted the reporter.

"Yes, we are rather in retirement now," he said, "but we are enjoying the life. We have twenty-five boys now and there are four instructors besides my wife and myself. I find that my health has been better here than for years past, although I have never had any serious trouble since my severe attack of sciatica about six years ago. My physician finally gave me relief, but symptoms of rheumatism continued, appearing especially in my right arm. Many people have been surprised that I did not go to my physician again, but I did not. Some friend suggested that I try Warner's Safe Cure," and as it was very easy to do I did it. It gave me immediate relief and since then I have used it at every recurrence of rheumatic symptoms. I have not used anything else and it has never failed to give prompt relief. I have a bottle on hand now, and only day before yesterday I bought a bottle for one of our boys who had pains in his back. If I felt at liberty to do so I could mention the names of acquaintances who have used it with great success. One is a man in business in Oakland who tried Warner's Safe Cure for kidney trouble and was cured. As you ask me the question directly I have no hesitation in saying that I regard it as a very valuable remedy, for my own experience has demonstrated that it is."

The reporter thanked Mr. Hoitt for the information he had so candidly and courteously given, and almost regretfully withdrew from the beautiful groves where the eminent educator has found an ideal place for a seat of learning.—San Francisco Evening Post.

BEEVERS SENTENCED.

Judge Holmes Gives Him Three Years in Folsom.

John A. Beevers, convicted of bigamy, appeared in Judge Holmes' court yesterday morning for sentence.

F. H. Short, his attorney, moved that the verdict be set aside on the grounds that the jury received evidence outside the court, that the verdict was decided by lot, that the court misdirected the jury in matters of law, that the verdict was contrary to law and that the court erred in denying defendant's motion to instruct the jury to dismiss defendant.

The motion was denied and Beevers was sentenced to three years in Folsom prison. A stay of thirty days was granted in order to give Beevers' counsel time to prepare a bill of exceptions.

Monkeys Might Be Made Useful.

Monkeys could be used in certain cases of fire, where expert climbing might be required; they could be used as messengers to some extent, and to do many light chores for man. They could be taught to destroy many vicious insects, such as tobacco worms, cutworms, cabbage worms and many others. They could be taught to do many things on a farm, and I think long domestication would develop many fields of usefulness for them.—New York Independent.

A Stroke of Economy.

The height of economy was that recently practiced by a woman who will move to the suburbs, and who effected the sale of her address die which she has used for her stationary to the incoming tenant of the house she will leave.—New York Times.
